General Tips

Always read the instructions that come with each game. They offer a detailed description of how to play the game as well as info on any materials (pens & paper, worksheet, rubber chicken, etc.) and how to score the game.

Most of the games have automatic animations that will bring text or pictures onto the screen. You will generally only need to click once per screen to move to the next slide. If the answer appears on the same screen as the question, you will have to click once for the answer to appear and once to move to the next screen. So don't get too click-happy.

Each game comes with an answer sheet so you can know which questions are coming up and who has the right answer when you're running the game.

Every game has basic instructions built-in and is made so you can just click and play, but it might be a good idea to run through the game once to familiarize yourself with it.

If you don't have Microsoft PowerPoint (needed to play the games) or Adobe Acrobat Reader (needed to view the instructions, answer key, etc.), there are links on the website to download PowerPoint Viewer and Acrobat Reader for free.
